

WRUW happenings

By KEN NAGELBERG

In its continuing efforts to bring the best in free music to the campus and the community, WRUW-FM is presenting the first of the Mather Courtyard Concert Series this Sunday. The free outdoor concert, which will round out the Spring Weekend activities, will feature The Fantasy Band, and Zazu Pitts and the Electric Prunes.

The concert will begin at 2:00 p.m. in the Mather Memorial Building courtyard, and will be simultaneously broadcast by WRUW, 91.1 on the FM dial. In case of rain, the concert will be moved to Harkness Chapel.

The Fantasy Band has attracted a great deal of attention among local folk buffs in their short history, achieving in little more than a year what usually takes a decade. The band consists of Bill Barnett and Jeff Williams, both of whom play a wide variety of stringed instruments.

Their outstanding feature is their originality, writing and performing their own material. They sometimes throw in songs by the Beatles and the Incredible String Band in their concerts, but rely mainly on their own music, which stresses highly poetic lyrics and intricate instrumentals.

Billy plays six and twelve string guitars, banjo, ukelele, and occasional electric guitar. Jeff plays guitar violin, dulcimer, kalimba, recorders, and assorted percussion. Don't be surprised to see them show up with other instruments, as they seem to pick up something new every week.

Both Jeff and Bill resided in Cleveland for the past few years, and they attended Cleveland Heights High School. They have played radio concerts for WMMS and WRUW, and have played at the Olive Tree, Hillel, and local folk clubs.

In contrast to the Fantasy Band is Zazu Pitts and the Electric Prunes, a rock band straight out of the 50's. The group features Mark "Zazu" Leichter, of Rockaway, New York, whose main influences are Dion DiMucci, Fredie "Boom-Boom" Cannon, and Bacardi Rum. Mark sings lead vocals. He is assisted on vocals by Danny Gilden, also of the New York area. Lead Guitar is played by Ron Bean, who also adds high harmonies.

Bob "Surf City" Siegel is the spiritual leader of the group, playing rhythm guitar, singing, and acting as rabbi in times of need. The Cleveland native was once a member of the famous local band, the Choir.

The rhythm section of the band consists of Al Vitberg, of the beautiful city of Buffalo, on bass, and Alden "Teen Angel" Cheylen, of equally beautiful Youngstown, playing drums.

More free music is on the way, including an exclusive concert-interview featuring David Krause of disbanded Tiny Alice, and a member of the Tiny Alice Jug Band. The tape will be played on the air next Thursday at 9 p.m.

Other free concerts are in the planning stage, including one featuring the Glass Harp, Ma Brown and more on May 13.
